

Judith Fox Bio

Judith Fox is an Associate Clinical Professor of Law at the Notre Dame Law School where she teaches and practices consumer law. Since joining the Notre Dame faculty in 1997, she has taught courses in consumer law, alternative dispute resolution, ethics and domestic violence. Prior to joining the law school faculty, Judy graduated from Notre Dame Law School, magna cum laude in 1993. She was the articles editor of the Notre Dame Law Review. Prior to joining the law school, Judy was Deputy Director of Berrien County Legal Services and, prior to that, a loan officer at banks in both Pennsylvania and Indiana.

Ms. Fox runs the Economic Justice Project at the Notre Dame Legal Aid Clinic. Her advocacy and research focus on issues of predatory lending, primarily in the housing market. She is a member of the Mortgage Foreclosure Task Force, on the Advisory Board of the Indiana Foreclosure Legal Assistance Program, the predatory lending committee of the Bridges Out of Poverty Initiative and the National Association of Consumer Layers. Ms. Fox has provided trainings on mortgage foreclosure issues in seminars held in Indiana, Maryland and Massachusetts.
