

Jacqueline Sells Homann Bio

Jacqueline Sells Homann has been serving a Chapter 7 Panel Trustee for the United States Bankruptcy Court since her appointment in 2002. As a trustee, she has worked closely with debtor's and creditor's counsel, the Bankruptcy Court and the United States Trustee. As a Chapter 7 Bankruptcy Trustee, her primary responsibilities are to liquidate assets for the benefit of creditors and to protect the integrity of the bankruptcy system.

In addition to her role as a Chapter 7 Panel Trustee, Jackie also maintains an active private practice with the firm of Jones Obenchain, LLP. The first female partner in Jones Obenchain's 100-year history, she has been practicing with the firm since 1997. Prior to that, she spent six years at Barnes & Thornburg and a year clerking for the Honorable Harry C. Dees, Judge of the Bankruptcy Court for Northern District of Indiana, South Bend division. She is a 1990 graduate of Notre Dame Law School and obtained her undergraduate degree from DePauw University. Jackie represents both closely held and national companies in variety of commercial litigation and business matters.

Jackie is also a wife and the mother of three children. Jackie is also proud to serve her community and currently sits on the Board of Directors of Morris Entertainment, Inc., having served as its president in 2009-2010. She is active at St. Peter Lutheran Church serving on the Worship and Liturgical Arts Committee and as Dance Mistress to the Liturgical Dance Team.
